Description
The stock page should be rewritten to be data-driven, or at least the update process should be documented. (The navbar footer currently says it was last updated in 2008, so there may not be any current process for updating it.) We might even want to rethink how this works, since the store is focusing more on selling what is in stock anyway. The stock pages are still potentially useful because they provide a listing by size/option -- which is sort of like a set of automatically-populated topics that we currently haven't defined...
